EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

During the reporting period of July to December 2025, Hunar Ghar successfully trained 131 marginalized women and girls from economically disadvantaged communities in Lucknow in comprehensive stitching and tailoring skills. The program achieved a 70% completion rate, with 17 beneficiaries securing employment or starting their own tailoring enterprises.

MEET OUR TRAINERS

The Heart of the Workshop The Stitching Trainer at Hunar Ghar is more than an instructor; they are a catalyst for financial independence. By blending traditional artistry with modern garment construction, they bridge the gap between hobbyist sewing and professional tailoring.

Ms. Shaheen Rizvi

Ms. Roshan Nisa

"Our goal isn't just to teach someone how to sew; it's to give them a tool for life. When a woman masters this skill, she isn't just making clothes—she is stitching together a future of dignity and self-reliance."

KEY HIGHLIGHTS

- 131 women enrolled across 02 batches
- 78 trainees successfully completed the full course
- 46 women placed in employment or self-employed

This period marks significant progress in our mission to economically empower marginalized women through skill development, enabling them to achieve financial independence and improved quality of life for their families.

NEW INITIATIVE: CHIKANKARI AT HUNAR GHAR

LAUNCH DATE: DECEMBER 2025

We are proud to announce the expansion of our vocational training programs with the launch of our Chikankari Initiative. This traditional hand-embroidery craft not only preserves a rich cultural heritage but also provides a sustainable path to financial independence for women in our community.

Key Highlights

- Initial Cohort: 15 dedicated beneficiaries enrolled in the first phase.
- Skill Development: Comprehensive training covering foundational stitches (Bakhiya, Phanda, and Keel Kanta etc.)
- Economic Impact: Designed to connect local artisans directly with contemporary markets.
- Empowerment Goal: Transforming a traditional art form into a viable source of monthly income for marginalised households.

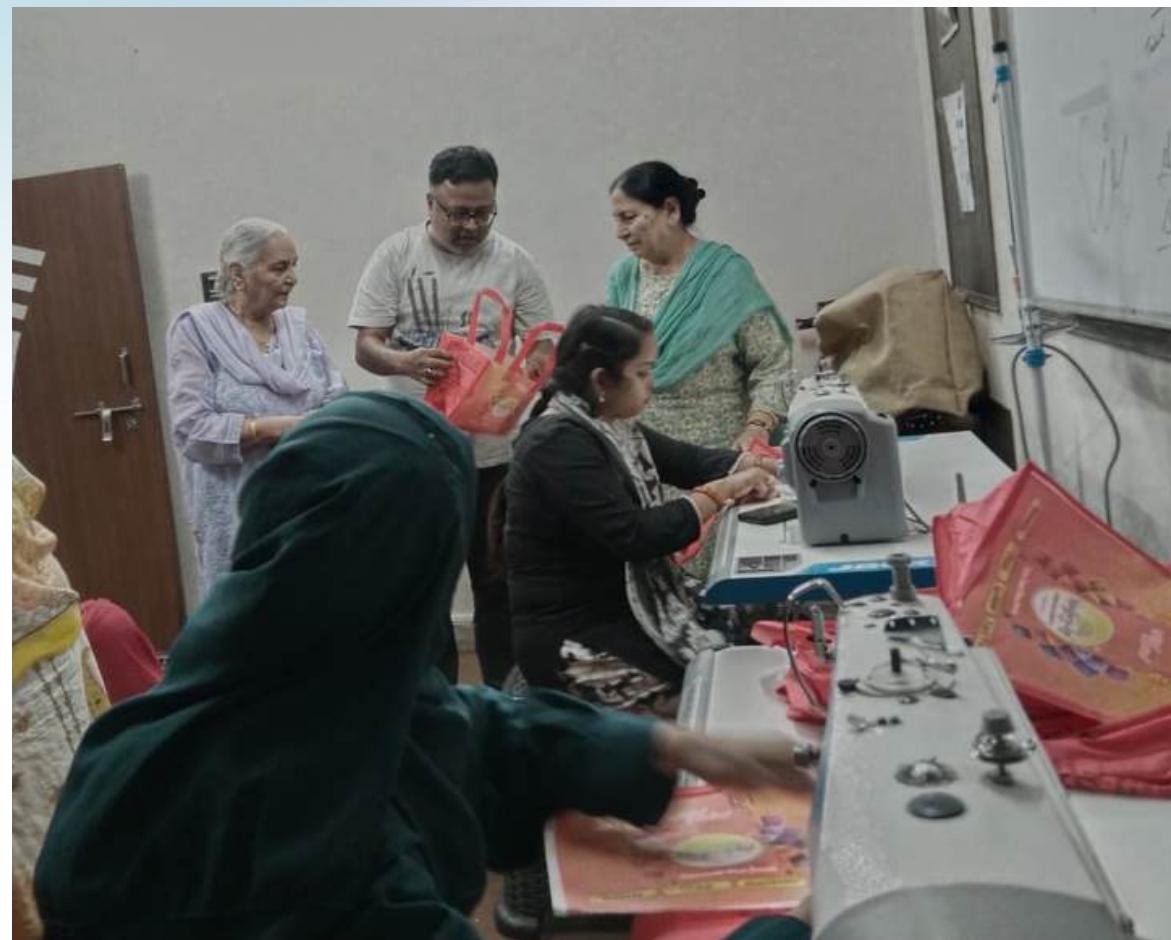

"This initiative is more than just embroidery; it is about stitching together a future of dignity and self-reliance for our artisans."
